Opening 2006

The smell of fresh paint and floor wax filled the air as upperclassmen entered the hallways ready to be involved in the new year. Freshmen peeked through the doors making sure no one could see them slip into the intriguing hustle and bustle of a long day. Lost friends were reunited as the start of the hectic day began.

It was only the beginning, and yet some were ready for the end. The students worried about the new day until the usual day-to-day routine fell in to place. And another year took off with upcoming events of homecoming, Christmas holidays, and graduation. The students' nostalgic memories of the last year were replaced by new experiences.

Many intellectual students looked forward to new and exciting clubs and activities. Visions of field-trips, community service, and garbage detail filled their heads.

Seniors were informed about scholarships, graduation, and college applications and scholarships. As the end approached, the individual students focused on end-of course and Gateway exams and eased their way into summer vacation.

the Light

Everyone get your autograph books ready because it's a must have to get Mrs. Leighton's John Hancock. This rambunctious and outgoing teacher is taking her free time to write Christian books for people to study and learn. She has used her insight and knowledge of the Bible to write a Christian study guide for women.

• What is your book about?

It's a ladies study guide on the book of Philippians that has thinking questions after each lesson.

• Was it difficult to name your book?

No, the name is derived from one of the verses in the NIV version, which says that we should Shine like Stars.

• How did you feel after you wrote your book?

Scared because I was worried it wasn't good enough. I thought it might be too preachy and maybe a little negative.

• What inspired you to write about the book of Philippians?

Well, I have always taught a class for ladies at church, and I thought why not write a book on what I taught. Much of what I wrote came from my congregation at church.

• In response to your book, how do people relate to its message?

I don't know, but I do think that a lot of ladies will relate because it's from a woman's perspective.

• When you retire will you write any more books?

That's one of the things I plan and hope to do. At the moment, I am reviewing a book for a Christian magazine that's distributed world wide.

• If someone wanted to purchase your book, where could they acquire it?

Anyone could get it at any Christian book store.

a closer look at

a new world

The thrill of the fight, a bull and a red cape, brings thoughts of Mexico racing through the mind. Unfortunately for us, Irineo Rico doesn't bull fight, but he does come from Mexico.

• Where are you from?

A little town called Apaseo el Alto in Mexico.

• How long have you been living in the United States?

For about three and half years.

• When you first moved here, what captured your attention or was your most favorite past time?

Since I moved here I liked to go fishing, that is probably one of the things I enjoy most.

• Moving around to a new country must have been tough. How did you cope?

Well, I didn't speak any English at all, so it was very hard and scary at first. When I started school at South Lawrence I had an ESL teacher, Rachel Counce, who taught me English. I thank her a lot for my language capabilities; I'm sure her job was stressful.

• Do you miss Mexico, and if you had the chance, would you move back?

I would not move back because it is better here, and there are so many more activities to do.

• Have you ever revisited Mexico?

Yes, I have revisited twice to see all my relatives.

What does super pinoy ulam mean? if you really just have to know and can't wait, then ask Lisa Howl an outgoing Filipino girl who loves learning about her culture and all its aspects.

• When did you first move to America and why?

I came here when I was two years old because my dad wanted to come back to America. My dad was in the Navy stationed in the Philippines and that's where he met my mom, a Filipino.

• Have you ever revisited your country?

No, I have never revisited my homeland, but I would love to very much.

• If you had the choice to move would you stay in America are go back to your homeland?

I wouldn't move there permanently because I have grown to love America and consider it my home, but just to visit there would be enjoyable.

• Do you miss your homeland?

Yes, I do miss it even though I really can't remember anything because it has been so long ago, but my mom reminisces a lot. She wants to go back to visit, but my dad doesn't really care otherwise.

• Have you ever studied the Filipino culture?

Yes, it's basically like Hawaii, in looks anyway, they have palm trees, pineapples, and stuff like that. Most people there speak the native language Tagalog, but there are some who speak English.

Baylee Slater

Accord

A melody of lyrics flow from a sweet harmony that sets Baylee Slater aside from other individuals. Her talent is an escalating passion to be the best she can at what she loves. As part of her church band, she sings for what she believes in and has fun doing it at the same time. For her, it isn't just a hobby it could be a way of life and career if pursued.

• When did you first start singing?

I started singing at about the age of five singing hymns at church.

• Have you had a lot of support from your family members and friends?

Yes, my dad has encouraged me a lot especially at church. Even at church, I get plenty of encouragement and support.

• What kind of singing do you do? What would you say is your type of style that sets you apart from all the other singers?

I sing mostly gospel in the church band where I go to church

• Do you compete in any contests?

No, but it would be hard for me to do because it would be so nerve racking and scary. I know everyone at church so it isn't as bad.

• So many competitions open up doors around the world for new singers, how do you feel about American Idol, would you ever try out?

Yes, because ever since I was little I wanted to sing. American Idol could help me reach that goal.

• Have any famous singers influenced you to pursuit this hobby as a career?

I would say that Barlow Girl, a Christian rock band, has influenced me because their lyrics are true to life and meaningful.

When you think of twins, what do you think of? Two people with similar attitudes, personalities, and ideas. Casey and Cassie Clayton are two unique individuals who share intuitions and much more than anyone could perceive. As a fraternal duo, these two are very happy with their relationship.

• What is it like being twins?

It's no different than not being a twin because no one notices the difference. They don't think that we're twins anyway and even brother or sister at times.

• Have you two ever created a language or special way to communicate with one another?

No, not to communicate, but sometimes we talk at the same time. It's really odd because it happens a lot.

• Did your mom ever try to dress you similarly?

Our mom was into the whole matching outfits thing. We wore matching sweatshirts. I (Cassie) wore Minnie mouse and Casey wore Mickey.

• Do you think being a twin differs from being the usual siblings?

We think that it's different because we are closer and have more in common and do lots of activities together.

• If you could, would you change the fact that you two are twins?

Nope, we wouldn't change it for the world.

Lee Wonseok

a new world

Meet Lee Wonseok a foreign exchange student from Asia. He comes to us to learn about American culture and society in the name of peace and education. His good-natured attitude makes him a highly likable person to be around.

• Where are you from?

I am from South Korea.

• When did you decide that you wanted to travel the world by becoming a foreign exchange student? Why?

About one year ago I decided I wanted to be in the foreign exchange program and I wanted to come to America because it is very big. I also wanted to develop my English skills and find a good college.

• Do you miss your homeland?

Yes, I am very home sick. In a way I can't wait to see my family again, but when I leave I will miss America.

• Cultures have different aspects in different nations, did America's culture surprise you?

No, it's pretty much what I expected.

• What will you do when you go back to South Korea?

I am going to finish the exchange program and then go back to South Korea. I hope to come back to America to find a good college after I graduate from high school.

• Did you expect to be going to a larger city than Loretto? Which, if you had a choice?

No, I didn't expect to go to a larger city. I like Loretto because it's peaceful with fresh air and it looks like the Korean countryside, which reminds me of home.

Hope Larry

Most people have a difficult time finding a true hobby. In fact, some people live their entire life without ever finding a favorite pastime but not Hope Larry. Hope has discovered the art of photography and the beauty it brings. For her, photography entertains and establishes a sense of worth and well being.

• Who or what inspired you to take up photography?

The unappreciated things in life such as, dirty dishes in the sink, Kayla Alsup looking out the window, or lady bugs dangling from the ceiling. They all hold a significant or specific hidden beauty.

• As a photographer, will you take that into a working career?

Yes, hopefully into photo-journalism.

• Do you think that you will go far in your photography talent?

Depending on your definition of far, yes.

• Inspiring people is truly amazing, do you inspire people with your talent? How do you think so?

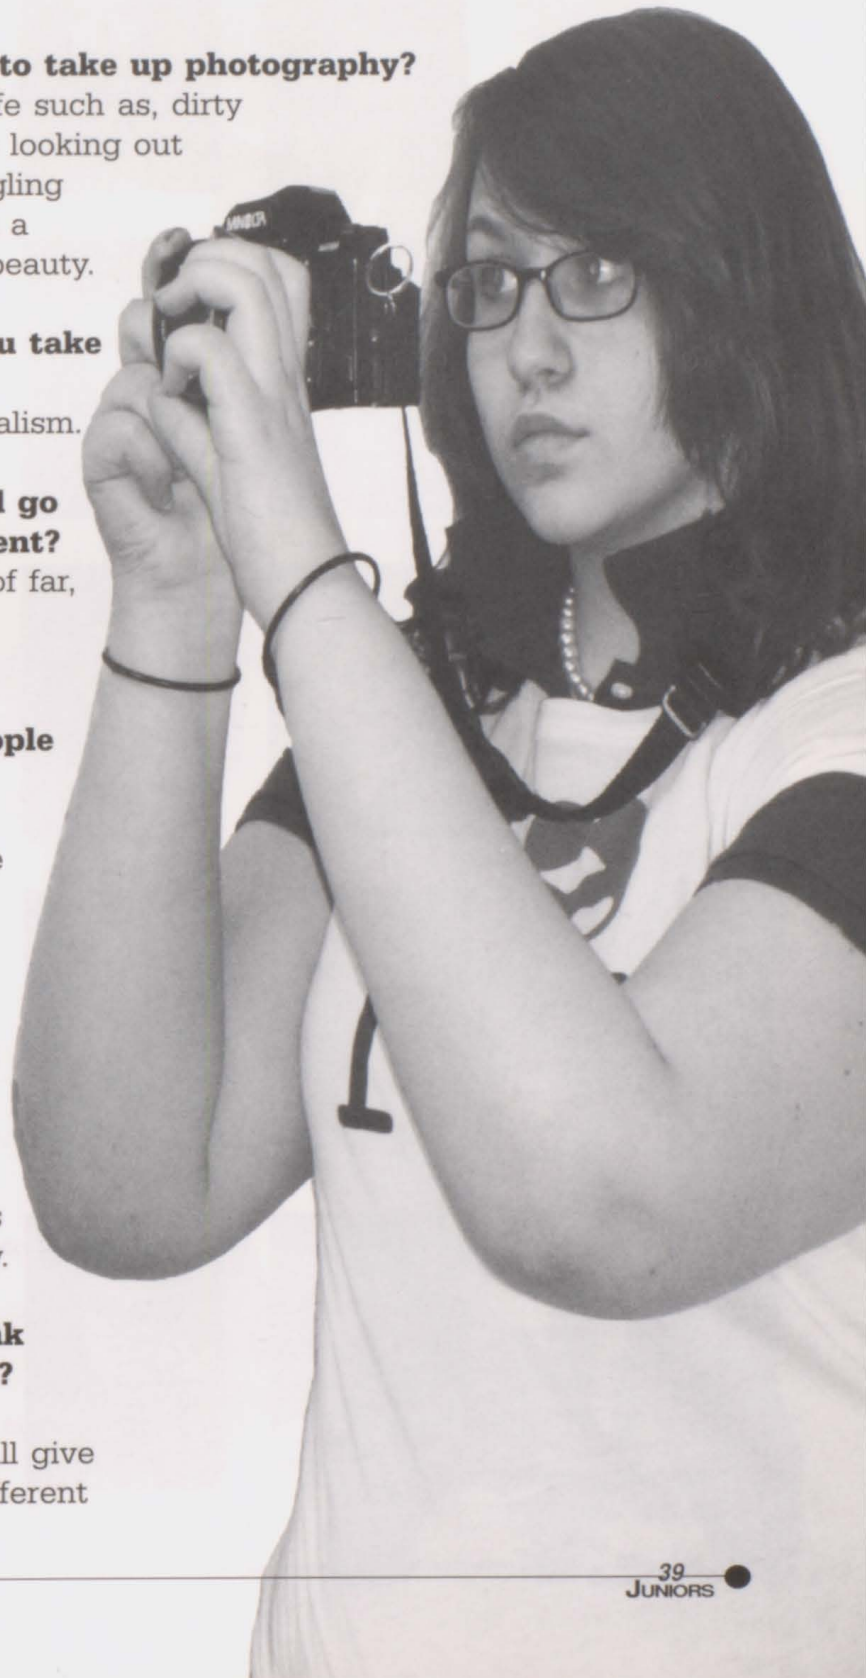

Of course I do, especially some of my 'talented' friends. With the natural grace of my talent (laugh).

• What makes photography so fun?

I get to capture memories, be completely random, and do whatever I want, which helps me to express my individuality.

• What rewards do you think photography will bring you?

Not only will it give me an opportunity to travel, but it will give me a chance to experience different cultures and aspects of life.

the Music

Deafening music soars through the air charging it with high voltage. The energy is a calling that attracts Tyler Hickman and his fellow band members. For him, escaping into lyrics and guitar strums is the only way to express and interpret his emotions and individuality.

• Numerous people around the world want to start a band, what makes your band truly original and interesting?

Our mascot, Edgar the emo guy.

• What kind of music do you guys play?

I would say that we play a mix between punk rock and screamo.

• How many people are in your band? And how did you guys get together?

Well there's four of us and when I got out of the last band I was in Austin (pictured) and I sat around at his gram's house and talked about his connections in Florida. Our band members, include: Austin King, Roberto Corchado, the guy named Jimmy, and me, Tyler Hickman.

• What do you guys call your band?

The name of our band is Embry Avenue, the street that my grandmother lives on.

• Since making it in the music business is tuff, do you think you will go far?

I hope so, but we are still in the "getting the word out" phase.

• How far do you want a music career to go?

Doesn't everyone want it to go far.

Horses

a closer look at

Gloria Price

Training

Hearing the sound of a horse running and watching them glide across an open plain inspires Gloria Price. This horse-back rider and trainer prefers to be around horses because of their congenial nature and friendly ways.

• What first got you interested in training and riding horses?

I grew up around them and I have been around horses my whole life. Everyone that I've been around owns horses, so I've been exposed to their horses and techniques.

• How long have you been training horses?

I have been training horses for about two years and I love it.

• What do you like about training horses?

Teaching something new and watching how other people enjoy horse-back riding. It's really amazing how some people react to riding a horse; their expression is incredible.

• There is a lot of equipment being used when riding a horse, what do you say is the most important?

The bridle because, as a trainer, control becomes a great issue. If you can't control, then there is no domination over the horse and it can be wild.

• What do you plan on doing when you get older?

I want to become a riding instructor and trainer since it's something that I immensely like.

• Since horses are your specified hobby, what would you tell people about them?

They are great animals that are fun to be around, especially if you treat them right, they'll be your best friend. I wouldn't trade a horse for anything.

Game

A thought might pass through certain minds wondering why people find hacky sack a form of enjoyment and entertainment. Instead of leisurely lying around playing video games or surfing the internet, Tony Giambelluca likes to play hacky sack. For him, hacky sack is a way to express his individuality and fulfill a sense of enjoyment. To people around him he is an inspiring friend and fellow hack player.

• How long have you been playing hacky sack and was it difficult to learn?

I have been playing for about two years, I think. At first playing hacky sack was difficult, but it got easier after practice.

• What draws your attention toward hacky sack when you could be a video game freak or a computer geek?

I don't know. I was a video-game freak for awhile, but I wanted something new and exciting, so I did the obvious I switched to hacky sack.

• Do you see hacky sack as a way to challenge authority?

No, just for fun. I don't see it as a way of challenging anything it's just a game, for me hacky sack is a sport to practice my agility and alertness.

• What do you think about school policy against hacky sack?

It's stupid that they won't let us do it anymore because it didn't cause any problems or issues.

• Do you see a future in hacky sack?

Not really. I just play for fun. I don't think there is an actual career involving hacky sack, but if they ever invent one I wouldn't mind, especially since its easy and fun to play.

• Any last words?

I think they should let us hack again.

a new world

She comes to us from around the globe. Her enthusiasm for meeting new people in different countries is contagious. For Nargiza Yusupova traveling around the world experiencing diverse cultures in the name of peace is one of the most fulfilling.

• Why did you want to be a foreign exchange student and travel across the world?

Because I wanted to bring our countries' cultures together and I wanted to learn more of America's customs.

• What was your first impression when you came to the small town of Loretto?

Actually, I was not expecting a big city, but my first impression was interesting because I have never been in such a small town where there was a lot of driving. The culture was like what I expected and matched my expectations.

• How do you like it here and does America seem to be what you thought it would be?

I like it here so far and America is what I thought it would be.

• What experiences have you had here that you will always look back on in the future?

I will never forget the people that I have met and the different people at the Pacific Intercultural Exchange, which is an organization that let me meet many other nationalities.

• Will you come back to America one day?

I think I will because I am looking for a college to go to and some international scholarships for Many differences existed between the seniors and underclassmen, and pep rally behavior was at the top of the list. Maybe the underclassmen thought they were too cool to cheer, or maybe they were just too lazy. Fortunately, the seniors were always ready to yell, scream, and dance to show their spirit.

With megaphones and painted faces Cory Dean and his friends were great examples of senior spirit. Whether whooping, hollering, or dancing these guys were always ready to support the cheerleaders and the team. "For me," said Cory, "it was all about the Ice Cream and Cake!"

Halloween Since Halloween is a time to enjoy being someone else for a whole day while eating the best sweet treats, why don't students participate in the activities of this fun-filled day?

"I have no idea," Coach Weeks said. "I guess it's because there isn't some kind of benefit for them. Students will not participate in any activity unless they get rewarded." Josh Ayers added, "They don't dress up because they're embarrassed." Dressed in his cat costume, embarrassment doesn't seem to be a factor for him. Coach Simbeck had another outlook on why the students did not participate. "Halloween was on Monday. They just forgot over the weekend."

Be it embarrassment or lack of enthusiasm, most students did not participate in the exciting activities. Perhaps next year when the holiday falls later in the week more students will participate.

He surveyed the available fashions and made his decision. "He was really whiney and said that he wouldn't do it unless he could be the French maid." said Lana. With much support, Zach was ready to change from male to female.

When the make-over began. Zach sat calmly as Lana worked. "I was ready for it." said Zach, "mainly because Lana was doing the make-over." At last it was over. Lana made one final adjustment and surveyed her work, but something was missing. Josh Allen ran to the janitor's closet and quickly returned. "A maid isn't a maid without a Hoover!" he exclaimed.

jobs

Throughout the years the traditional job for teens has been fastfood. Although this may still be true for most, some teens have went a different way to make some money.

Some guys mow yards, bale hay or fence; while girls may babysit or help older people with cleaning. Another job that many teens have begun is working in chickens barns around the county.

Most teens in the work force today are working in order to pay for cell phones or the perfect car. Along with all of this also comes insurance, gas, and for guys, date money. Working to get what you want makes teens realize that money does not grow on trees.

Getting ready for the winter semi-formal takes a lot of time and effort, but above all money. Whether it is finding the right dress, choosing a tie, or buying tickets, both guys and girls fork out some serious dough to attend this event. But who spends more?

The expense report:

Guys	Girls
Shirt-$50	Dress-$100
Tie-$25	Hair-$25
Pants-$40	Nails-$25
Food & Tickets-$50	Shoes-$30
Corsage-$15	Earrings-$20
Shoes-$50	Necklace-$20
Total=$230	Total=$220

Sure, these are only approximations, and more or less may have been spent. However, unless your attire was borrowed, already in your closet, or you ate a McDonald's, the difference was miniscule.

The best thing about Winter Formal was being with all my friends.

Jessica Shultz--sophomore

The worst thing about Winter Formal was that they would not play Rammstein. I guess it was too hardcore for our little school.

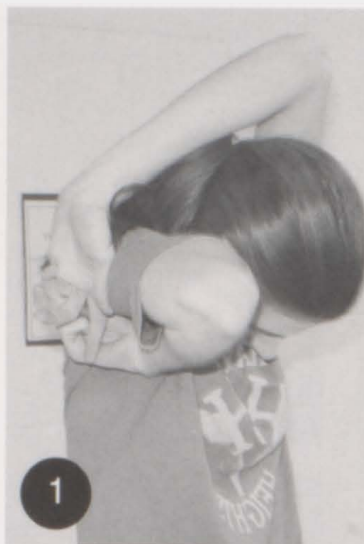

Chase Fleeman--junior

The worst part of Winter Formal was watching people who didn't know how to dance!

students show off strange talents

- 1 Though it looks very painful, twisting and pulling her arms out of joint comes simple to Stacey Newton. Stacey can get both arms over her head while keeping them locked together.
- 2 His fingers aren't made of rubber, but Daniel Barnett has no problem bending his finger back to the top of his hand. This has always been a cool way to freak out his friends.
- 3 Tongue twisters Katelyn Moore and Ashley Matherly get together to display their unusual ability. I hate for people to know that I can do it because it's embarrassing, I said Ashley.
- 4 Juggling as fast as he possibly can without dropping one ball, Austin King displays his hidden talent. He learned to juggle at an entertainment camp in Florida.
- 5 Giving new meaning to the words flipped out, Kyle Bosheers shows off his acrobatic skills. His love of martial arts has inspired Kyle to learn different acrobatic skills.
- 6 It's on the tip of her tongue; Connie Davis flexes her strongest muscle.
- 7 Human pretzel Molly Littrell shows her flexibility. This girl bends, but she doesn't break.
- 8 To keep from bending down, Jaime Degan lets her feet do the work of her hands. This agile skill keeps Jaime from expending too much energy on the difficult task of bending.

We all have unique talents, but some people have talents that are just down-right weird. Those people who can pop things out of joint or become a human pretzel intrigue us. But when and how do they realize that they have such talent?

A mesmerizing ieeewi echoes through the room as Allegra Robertson pulls her thumb all the way back to her forearm. When asked how she figured out she could do this, Allegra said, "When I was about seven, I was just sitting around being bored. I guess it was just something to do."

However, it was all upperclassmen in the girls' games. The senior and junior girls prevailed against the underclassmen for the semi-finals. The seniors went on to the 'ship against the teachers.

final productions

This year teacher and director Dolly Leighton took her final curtain call with the production of Neil Simon's The Odd Couple. This was not new territory for her as she had directed this play in the 70's at LCHS with cast member Michael Jeter and in 1997 at LHS. However, this year she gave it a new twist by directing two plays, the traditional all male cast and a second play with females in the lead.

With Mrs. Leighton taking on two plays at once, holding up a cast of new actors, and dealing with geothermal construction, the final question was "Will there be a play?". The casts for both plays pulled through and made Mrs. Leighton shine in her final production at our school. Her talent, drive, and love of teaching will be greatly missed, but we wish her the best.

Being in the play was more exciting this year because it was my last year, and I had to give it my all.

decorations Prom—a time of smiles and laughter, of sweet moments and last chances for seniors to boogie. That's the way most of us like to think of that special night. The night was special, but the pre-prom decision making was not so special.

Many seniors were very unsatisfied when they heard the news that the theme had been changed from an ivy extravaganza to a beautiful night of fireworks.

Class president Josie Brown, who spent much time working with the prom committee, handled the whole situation very well. She remained cool, and everything went off without a hitch. After all, prom is about spending a night with the people you care about, not decorations.

class time

Because students love learning, they would never goof off or sleep instead of doing their work. . .NOT!

While wandering the halls, we found some students who were less than interested in their studies. They were sleeping, eating, roaming the halls, and even playing basketball. Corey Taylor was one such student. He said, "Sometimes I get so bored I can't hold my eyes open. Reading always makes me sleepy."

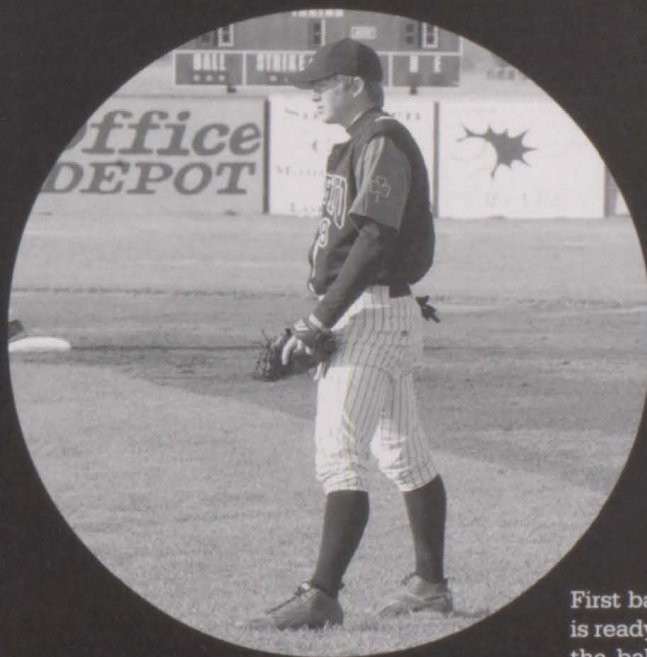

Seriously though, class time is not always boredom and books. Learning can be fun. Tyler Horton said, "Doing projects or group work is great way to break the monotony of class." Fortunately our teachers know this and always try to incorporate different learning styles into their teaching.

no re-plays make for a long golf season

Even though the 2005 golf season was less than stellar, the team always had a great time. "Working in the concession stand and trying to find someone to clean out the cheese pans was always fun," said Mr. Perry.

The boys team finished fifth out of ten teams in the District Tournament play while the girls finished seventh out of eight teams. "My most memorable moment was the District Tournament because I was in one of the leading groups," stated Derek Stults.

Because she scored in the top five during the District Tournament, Leah Stone was the only person to make it to the Region Tournament. "I shot a 125 at District and a 127 at Region. Obviously, I didn't qualify for state," said Leah.

The season was not a complete loss as two team members were able to reach celebrity status. Leah Stone and Cameron Hoffmeyer were asked to shoot a commercial for Clax Brank Golf Course. "Getting out of school to shoot the commercial for Fox was awesome!" said Cameron Hoffmeyer.

Making History

volleyball team has record breaking season

On a Thursday night in our crowded, hot gym, the volleyball team struggled in their second game of a five game match against Ezell Harding. This was not the typical Thursday night match. This match was for a trip to the state tournament, and it seemed the Lady Mustangs were losing the momentum that had been built during the first game's victory. Senior Josie Beecham said, "We weren't playing as a team, and we felt so pressured into winning."

The crowd was quieted but still hopeful when the team lost the second game. Fan and volleyball mom, Darlene Bradley said, "I knew the team was going to get back on track and win the rest of the games." The ladies headed to the sideline and awaited their pep talk. Coach

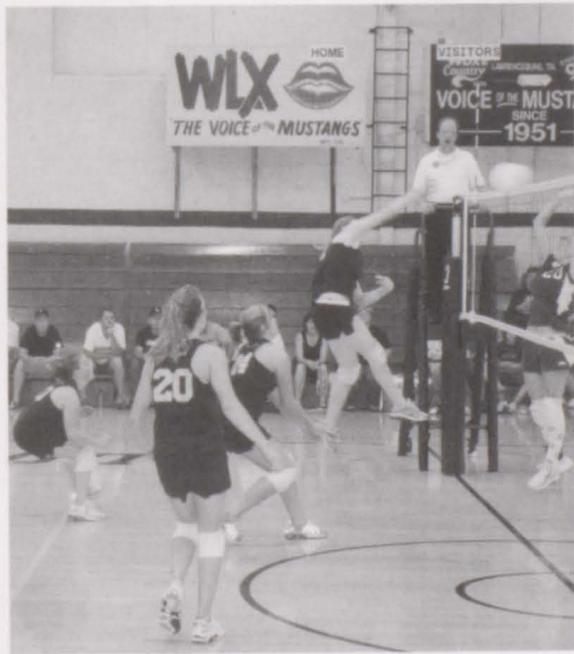

DeeDee Brown's speech was simple. She told the girls, "Stay focused and forget the loss. We've prepared all season for this. There's nothing I can do to make you play better. It's up to each of you."

The ladies regained their focus and took the court. The third and fourth games were close, but the team came out on top, punching their ticket to the state tournament.

Once at the state tournament, the ladies marched to the semi-finals where they faced an experienced East Ridge team. Misty Urban said, "They were good, but we just couldn't hold up under the pressure." Eventhough they lost in the state semi-final, this team went down in history, making it further in post season than any team in school history.

soccer team battles through a tough season

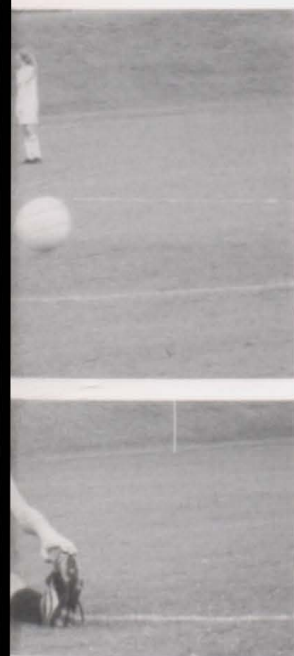

Sports require hard work, dedication, and the desire to succeed, and Contrary to myth winning is not everything. Sometimes enduring a few tough seasons is just what a team needs to become the best. Things should, hopefully, be looking up for the soccer team in the future.

Caitlin Hoffmeyer said, "It's hard to stay motivated when you struggle in every game, but we did our best and learned a lot."

The team gave their best effort but could never come out on top.

The coaches are hopeful that next year with learning and determination the ladies will be able to chalk up a few wins. With no seniors, no one will be lost to graduation which will give the team more time to develop their skills. "I think next year we will be able to get it together and win a few." said Catherine Kennedy.

team continues to learn the skills for success

The boy's soccer team had a building year as they were somewhat inexperienced and got a late start on practice because noon was for sure who was going to coach the team. But, when the dust settled the Mustangs were led by coaches Deanna Huntley and Donald Waldrop.

The Mustangs started off the year by losing their first five games to tough opponents, then tying Wayne County. This was as close as the Mustangs would get to seeing victory, They lost their next five games to very good teams. Although they only tied one game on the year, the Mustangs look to have a better year in the coming years and with conditioning and training, They will only get better in the future.

football team struggles through season

On a sweltering August night the curtain was raised on the 2005 football season. The team took the field against rival Lawrence County in hopes of posting a big win to kick off the season. The Mustangs started off strong and answered each Wildcat touchdown but lost momentum in the second half of the game. Thus, began a season of ups and downs for the Mustangs

The team was unable to hold off Collinwood the next week but came back to win a close one against Decatur County. And so went the season: two losses, a win, a loss, two wins, and a loss. "We should have one two or three more games." said senior Ben Wiseman. "If we'd played our best in a few of those, like Lewis County, those wins would've sent us to the play-offs."

The season also brought out the talent of many players. Senior Mark Lamm showed his offensive talent as quarterback. Freshmen stand-out Charles Gordon impressed teammates and fans alike with his immense talent. Although he transferred schools at the end of the season, his contributions to the season won't be forgotten. Finally, senior defensive stand-out John Jacobs earned a full scholarship to West Point Military Academy where he will continue his football career.

Next year's season will give the Mustangs a chance to post another winning season and also bring out the talent of more outstanding athletes. Junior Luke Buttrum said, "We intend to work hard over the summer so we can win more games next season."

Great Expectations

lady mustangs fall short in season of high hopes

The crowd in the Giles County High School is blaring. Leah Stone stops, pulls up, and takes the open three. She misses. Ezell Harding takes it back down the floor only to turn it over. The crowd cheers. Jessica Green leads the fast break and passes it low to Jana Cross who puts up the short jumper; a miss.

At the beginning of the season, coaches, fans, and players had great expectations for the team. "Everyone expected this to be the year for us." said Jessica Green. In the beginning it was. The ladies handily defeated several teams and were on a roll.

In December, they won the Lauderdale Co. Christmas Tournament for the third time. They faced a tough Deshler team but weren't otherwise challenged.

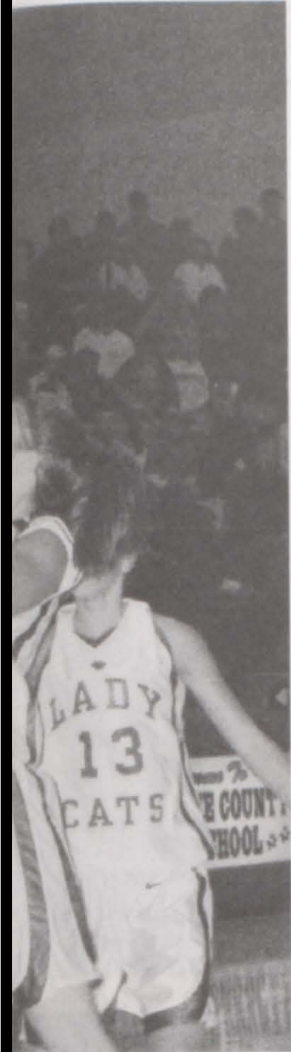

After the holidays, the ladies met some teams from earlier in the season and were stunned by their improvement. Leah Stone said, "I think we just didn't play our best when we met those teams again."

The team continued to be challenged by the smaller district teams like Collinwood, Wayne County, Perry County, and Summertown, losing to the last three teams. Sarah Brewer said, "That district was really strong this year and really challenged us."

The ladies breezed through the district tourney into first place for the third year in a row, but the cakewalk would soon come to a screeching halt.

Fans, players and coaches had high hopes for the region tourney. However, in the second round of play the team met a tough Ezell Harding club. The Lady Eagles came out with a quick nine point lead and the team never recovered. "We made some good defensive plays but could never get anything going on offense" said Jana Cross. "It was tough to end knowing we could have played better."

No Lucky Breaks

season goes from bad to worse

As the final seconds ticked away on the clock against Marshall County, the Mustangs found themselves down two in a back and forth game. With less than a minute remaining, the team managed to tie the game, and lady luck seemed to be on their side. Unfortunately, Marshall was able to sink a last second shot and seal a victory.

Luck was not on the side of the Mustangs this year as they were unable to pick up any momentum throughout the season. With the loss of key senior leader Ralph Passarella early in the season, the team never recovered. The team averaged only forty-one points a game and struggled offensively. Colin Stout said, "Even when we played our very best it seemed like we couldn't catch a break."

With the Mustangs graduating only three players, next year looks promising.

The Longest Season

cheerleading takes hard work and decation

After tryouts, 25 girls with pounding hearts awaited the announcement of their number. The chosen looked forward to the long road ahead of them. Numerous practices, learning cheers, and building stunts would take a lot of time and effort.

Their long season began in June and continued with UCA camp at UNA. "Even though camp is hard and very hot we always have a blast!" said senior Ashley Stephenson.

At the beginning of football season, it was time to show what they had learned. "You mess up at first, but by the end of the season you know everything pretty well." said

Jessica Kerstiens.

The girls performed some new and more difficult stunts during basketball season, thanks to the well trained freshmen girls. "Having so many new cheerleaders was a lot a work but I couldn't ask for a better group of girls. They were hard working and full of spirit," said senior Kim Woodard.

By the time basketball tournaments rolled around, the girls had been involved in cheering for nine months, and spirit was hard to come by. "It's hard to stay peppy, but you just have to do it for the team. After all, that's why we're here." said Kirsten McMahan.

lady mustangs can't get past region

It's the bottom of the sixth, and the score is tied 1-1 during the first round of district tournament action against Giles County. The pressure is on as Senior Jessica Green steps up to the plate, "I was thinking that I had to do whatever it took to get on base." She singles, and Amber Vansandt steps up to the plate. The freshmen doesn't fold under the pressure as she singles to put runners on first and second.

The crowd and team is hopeful as Senior Leah Stone gets ready to hit; "I didn't want to get the first out!" she said. She hit to the pitcher and forced the out on third, but luck was still on her side as the other team made errors that sent Amber Vansandt across homeplate.

The luck continued as the ladies scored another run. They took the field at the top of the seventh and went three up and three down to send the Bobcats packing.

They advanced to the finals and placed second. Then, they traveled to Hume Fogg for regionals, but lost 1-2 to end a great season.

Great Balls of Fire

baseball team lives up to expectations

Because the baseball team was able to live up to its high expectations, the season was one to remember. The Mustangs were very successful in their season recording twenty-four wins and six losses.

Leading the Mustangs, Mark Lamm was a double force for the Mustangs, striking out his opponents left and right, while also slugging several home runs. His tenure was so impressive that he was signed by the Vanderbilt Commodores. Mark Lamm said, "I look forward to playing on an SEC team, and I know I'll be getting a great education as well."

This year's team played several games, including a tournament in Port St. Joe, Florida and the annual St. Patrick's tournament. The team placed first in the district tournament but fell short in the regional semi-final where they had a less-than-stellar performance. However, with such great talent and impressive play the baseball team left a lasting mark on the pages of school history.

SERVICE WITH A SMILE

practice and teamwork make the difference

Tennis is a game that mostly everyone forgets about, but it is an interesting sport that requires both mental and physical stamina. Practice makes perfect, and team support makes the difference.

At each practice the team runs sprints and practices forehands, backhands, and serves. Though they may not enjoy it, the team knows it's necessary. "Everyone on the tennis team makes a tremendous effort all the time. We just enjoy ourselves, and have a great time playing the game," says Olivia Roberson.

Even though one team member is usually on the court at a time, teamwork is important. Stacy Newton says, "Working with everyone as a team is great, especially when the results are seen in the matches. It's great to know you have their support when your on the court."

Tennis may not be the most popular sport, but it is difficult. The game is all about strategy and endurance. The team has worked hard, and Coach Kay Busby says, "We have been successful this year, and hopefully that will continue."

The Revolving Door

constant change difficult for band students

If change is difficult, then constant change is unbearable. Just ask any band member.

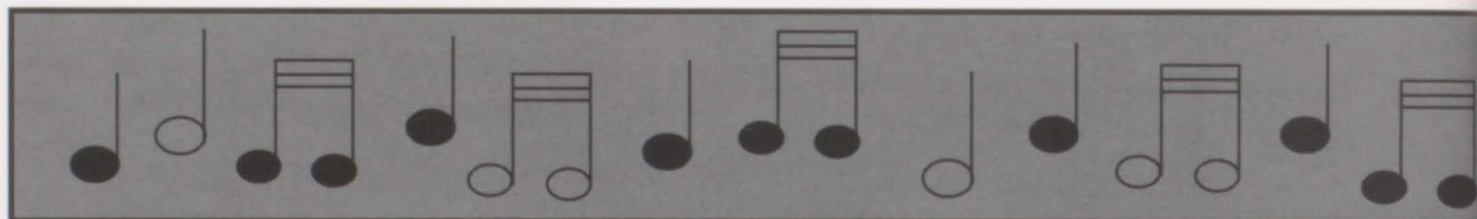

In six years the band has had four band directors, and it has been difficult for their program to gain any momentum. Amber Robertson said, "I know that about six or seven years ago the band was starting to grow, but then everything fell apart."

After James Jackson left, Tracy Crumpton took over and lasted only a year. She was replaced by Wayne Johnson who had to quit due to health issues. Sam Stough took over the reigns for two years, and the students were getting comfortable. Things looked grim for the band when Stough left, and a finding a replacement was questionable. However, everyone was hopeful when Tom Risher, former assistant band director for UNA, took over this year. Valerie Pannell said, "We were really looking forward to having a band director."

The change was difficult, and the road was rocky. Michael Jaco said, "We had some bad times this year, but I enjoyed being with my friends. I'm hopeful that things will get better."

The door revolves again as the band searches for new leadership. Hopefully, for the sake of the students, the new director will be able to take this important program to new heights.

"Being with my friends, I guess. I definitely did not enjoy working with the new band director."

Cory Taylor

"Being at all the football games was fun."

Katelyn Moore

In their own words

How would you describe band this year?

"I liked being the drum major this year, but it was very difficult at times."

-Valerie Pannell

"Not getting to do a half-time show wasn't too great."

-Misty Niedgergeses

"The change of leadership was difficult, but we had fun anyway."

-Curt Hughes

"I had fun all the time, and I'm looking forward to next year."

-Ashley Davis

As we walked through the intriguing halls on the first day of school, we were all faced with decisions that had to be made. Who are the new teachers? What's my first class? What's for lunch? We gazed down the hall trying to find the individuals that we called friends. At last we found them and settled into our usual surroundings. We weren't ready to be here, but we knew the year held immense possibilities.

Each freshmen entered the school feeling intimidated and nervous at the sight of a different campus and many new people. By the end of the school year, many had increased their intellectual level and were ready to say goodbye to their first year in high school.

The sophomores and juniors entered school feeling comfortable and in place. Although it was a new year, the students adapted to the environment and were involved in many activities. The sophomores ended the year ready to press toward their next rite of passage: driver's license. And the juniors readied themselves to step into big senior shoes.

The seniors felt on top of the world knowing that they had finally made it to the top. As the year came to a close each was informed about prom, trips, and graduation requirements. They were faced with the biggest question of their life: "What next?". As the tassles were moved on the mortarboards and tears shed, the class of 2006 said goodbye to the halls of LHS and hello to the reality of life.

Colophone

To other students the ladder diagram and long list of highlighted names offered amusement and confusion, they never truly understood its purpose.

The first few days of class were difficult as we tried to create a memorable theme; chaos, cell phones, horses. What were we to do? After much discussion the theme was nailed down, and we were on our way.

Leah and Tasha discussed their relationship tribulations and sought advice from Mrs. Weaver who was always ready to be honest and tell it like it was. Ashley S. kept everyone screaming with her "boy trouble", and Ashley T. was always ready to speak her mind on any situation. Poor Kyle Johnson suffered through a whole semester being the only boy in our class. Let's just say he learned a lot about women.

We made it through the book sale. Lost photos had to be retaken several times. Questions asked one day had to be asked again the next because no one could remember where we put the answers.

A big thanks goes out to our Herff Jones representative, Lisa East, who was readily available and always ready to go the extra mile for us. We thank Lifetouch and their best photographer, O.J., for all the great photos they took. Last but not least, we thank Mrs. Dru Henson-Hunt for scheduling and organizing our photo shoots with Lifetouch and handling the senior pictures.

Stampede 2006 was printed by Herff Jones, 2800 Selma Highway, Montgomery, AL 36108 with the aid of customer service adviser Rena Locker. Early orders of the yearbook were $45, while late purchases cost $50.

The cover, designed by Mrs. Weaver, is leather with a silk screen. The featured fonts are AHJ sans and AHJ serif.

All pages were submitted on disk, using Pagemaker 6.5 and Adobe Photoshop. Pictures not taken by Lifetouch were shot with an Olympus Camedia digital camera and various student cameras.
